CC: All United States Senators

Dear Senators,

As elected officials, Congress is tasked with reflecting the will of the American people. The results of last November make clear that the country wants to see a departure from the past four years of failed Biden-Harris leadership. Come January 20, 2025, President Trump and our House and Senate majorities must implement the America First agenda that we promised. We all have a role to play, and for this reason I respectfully urge my Senate colleagues to proceed swiftly with the confirmation of President Trump's executive branch nominees.

The weaponization of the federal bureaucracy has defined the Biden-Harris Administration. Never before in our history has the executive branch sought to impose its will on the lives of Americans on such a scale. From record inflation to the historic border crisis to a reluctance to deter our adversaries abroad, un-elected bureaucrats have shown indifference at best and malice at worst towards the American people. It is imperative that we do all in our power to allow President Trump to effect lasting change from day one, and that begins with the Senate's confirmation of new leadership to federal agencies.

President Trump has selected these nominees based on their shared, strong, and demonstrated commitment to restoring American values and pursuing the best interests of the nation. When it comes to President Trump's slate of nominees, the sum of the whole is even greater than its parts—we need a united executive branch if we are to right the ship. I am adamant that these nominees will play a vital role in implementing President Trump's agenda for the betterment of our country, which we know and love.

Thank you for the strong support that many of you have already espoused for President Trump's nominees. We cannot falter nor rebuke the mandate of the American people as we turn the page on the past four years of failed executive leadership. I look forward to working together in the 119th Congress, and I once again urge each of you to give each of President Trump's nominees your full and unwavering support.

Sincerely,
