

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

Jim Byron
Senior Advisor to the Archivist
National Archives and Records Administration

Washington, D.C., 20408

I write in response to your notifications of June 10, 2025 (Request No. 2025-075), June 23, 2025 (Request No. 2025-084), and July 24, 2025 (Request No. 2025-116) regarding sets of documents requested by the Senate Judiciary Committee and the Senate Homeland Security and Government Affairs Committee in response to special access requests pursuant to 44 U.S.C. § 2205(2)(C). President Trump has determined that an assertion of executive privilege is not in the best interests of the United States, and therefore is not justified as to any of the documents requested by the United States Congress.

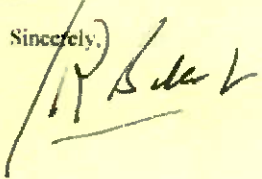

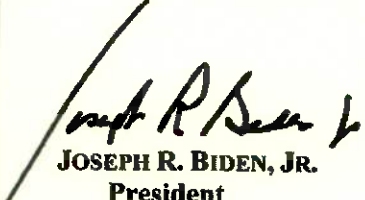

As President Trump has stated, the abuse of the autopen that took place during the Biden Presidency, and the extraordinary efforts to shield President Biden's diminished faculties from the public, must be subject to a full accounting to ensure nothing similar ever happens again. Similarly, President Biden's repeated abuses of the rights of American citizens during the pandemic and his politically motivated efforts to investigate Members of Congress must also be subject to a full accounting to ensure nothing similar ever happens again. Congress has a compelling need in service of its legislative functions to understand the circumstances that led to all these horrific events. The available evidence to date establishes a sufficient factual predicate for Congress' investigations. Any American, save for those paid to cover the President as "reporters", could see that President Biden struggled to perform his duties. Numerous reports have called into question the origins of COVID-19 and revealed that the Biden Administration pressured entities to censor Americans. And, disclosures reveal that President Biden spied on lawmakers and secretly obtained phone data from Members of Congress.

WASHINGTON

These are unique and extraordinary circumstances. Congress is examining an assault on the President's constitutional duties, the civil liberties the Constitution provides all Americans, and the democratic institution of Congress itself. The constitutional protections of executive privilege should not be used to shield, from Congress or the public, information that reflects a clear and apparent effort to subvert the Constitution itself.

The President's determination applies solely to the documents described in President Biden's October 1, 2025 letter to the Director of the Archival Operation Division at the National Archives and Records Administration. Remarkably, that letter demonstrates the importance of these congressional investigations. President Biden's signature does not match the one he used to pardon his family or his son:

David Warrington
Counsel to the President
